

Statement from the Center for the Arts and Humanities:

SCU's Center for the Arts and Humanities expresses its full and complete support for a unionization vote by adjunct and lecturer faculty. The CAH finds the University administration's tactics in opposing this vote to be anti-democratic, anti-worker, and an unethical use of the University budget. We call on the administration to fire the anti-union legal firm who has led them to adopt such tactics. We stand in solidarity with our adjunct and lecturer faculty, and express deep gratitude to those who have donated their time and energy to organize this vote on unionization.
